The county commissioners of Salt Lake county, under the assumption that they can get along with $20,000 less than last year, Saturday fixed the annual levy at 4.7 mills, against 7.2 mills last year and 8.5 mills in 1900. The levy, which is 5 mills less than last year, is divided as follows: Four mills for general county purposes, 1/2 mill for interest on bonds, and 2.2 mills for a county school tax.

The commissioners expect the present levy on bonds to fall $4,000 short of being sufficient, but they expect to make up the deficiency from licenses and fees. On the other hand, the school tax levy, on account of the increased valuation in the county, will yield the schools $5,000 more than it did last year. The total tax that will be raised by the levy fixed yesterday will be $186,200.

It is reported that John Derr and E. H. Alris of the Con. Mercu have secured control of Frank E. Wilson's Friday group of gold mines out of Baker City, Ore. The price, it is said, being close to $50,000. Mr. Wilson has gone to the property to superintend the erection of a mill.

PARK CITY.

Utah's Great Camp Still Mourning the Loss of Brave Miners.

Our correspondent at Park City last week was in attendance at the A. O. H. convention in Denver, returning only the other day. On his return from the camp, therefore, is mostly obtained from the columns of the Park Record of July 19. Following is a partial account of the funeral of the victims of the disastrous explosion.

The horror and excitement of Wednesday and Thursday, during which time all thoughts had been occupied with the recovery and care of the dead, gave way yesterday to that of mute sorrow and sadness when the hours were given up to the consignments of the unfortunate to their last resting place in the solemn citadels of the dead. It was funeral day. Words fail to express or compass the feelings of our citizens who bared their heads in respect or reverence—heads outflowing with pity and eyes swelling with unshed tears, as the long processions passed them by on their solemn marches to the cemetery plots, tenderly lay in the beds of their last long sleep all that was mortal of those who but a few hours before were in the full possession of vigorous manhood. No sadder spectacle has ever been witnessed by the citizens of the Park than that of yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, when twelve of our fellow men were borne through our streets in step to the time of a funeral march. Few eyes remained undimmed by the sight—no hearts were there untouched at the thought that beneath each mound, now raised, a mother's heart was also buried. It was funeral day in the Park. It will never be forgotten.

The twelve were all taken from the Catholic church, and were followed by at least 500 miners and members of the Order of Hibernians. Every vehicle in town was pressed into service, ten of them serving as improvised hearses. Hundreds unable to get horses or conveyances walked to the burial place and stood in the ranks, the whole city turned out. The names of the twelve were Patrick O'Neill, John Devlin, Harry Devlin, Mike Conlon, James Murrin, Chris McMillan, John McConry, Wadsworth, John Lively, Chris Cullen, John Carney and John Dillon. Rev. Father Galligan officiated. They were interred in the city cemetery.

Immediately on the return from the cemetery the funeral of Johnnie McLaughlin, took place, also from the Catholic church. The Park City lodge of Elks, of which deceased was a member, attended a body, nearly 100 strong, each carrying a bouquet of carnations and evergreens, which completely covered the coffin, as they were deposited thereon after the body was lowered into the grave. The interment was in Glenwood cemetery. The floral tributes were probably the largest and most magnificent ever seen here. The stage hands of the Dewey theatre, fellow workmen of the deceased, also followed the remains in a body.

Funeral services over the remains of Thomas A. Kelly took place at the same time and place, and his body, accompanied by a very large and strong, each carrying a bouquet of carnations and evergreens, which completely covered the coffin, as they were deposited thereon after the body was lowered into the grave. The interment was in Glenwood cemetery. The floral tributes were probably the largest and most magnificent ever seen here. The stage hands of the Dewey theatre, fellow workmen of the deceased, also followed the remains in a body.

The funeral of George Garvin was held Thursday from the Catholic church, and like the others, was attended by nearly every citizen.

Death of Michael Martin.

In this week of calamity, when all hearts are sad and heavy with the loss of loved ones, fellow workmen and intimate friends, we have added to our sorrow the death of a fellow citizen who was very near and dear to all who knew him. Michael Martin went to Salt Lake City, June 4 last, thinking that a few days' rest would restore him to a full enjoyment of health, but instead he rapidly grew worse with a complication of diseases, so when the news came Friday morning, July 18, saying he had died the night before it brought only regret and sorrow.

Michael Martin was born at Fife-shire, Scotland, thirty-two years ago, and for the past ten years had been a resident of this city, working at the Anchor and Silver King mines, and since January 4, 1902, had been a trusted and efficient member of the city police force. He leaves three sisters and three brothers to mourn his loss, one of whom, Peter Martin, is the present assessor of the county. The funeral took place from the Catholic church last Sunday under the auspices of division No. 1, A. O. H., and Park City lodge, No. 734, B. P. O. E., of which deceased was a member. The remains will arrive from Salt Lake on tomorrow morning's train.

Mrs. Gibeay Dead.
Mrs. Mary Gray Gibeay died Thursday, July 17, from pneumonia, after an illness of six days. She was born in Essex, N. Y., and was 49 years of age. She had been a resident of the Park since August, 1880. She was a woman of fine character, highly respected by all. She was a woman of life and ambition, and by her determination and energy always made her way through life.

In Memoriam.

The angel of Death has set his mark upon several of Park City's staunch Hibernians recently, aside from those who met the spectre suddenly in the awful calamity at the Daly West. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the A. O. H. met recently and adopted resolutions of condolence to the families of Thomas A. Kelly, who died July 18, Patrick O'Neill, who died the same day, and Michael Martin, who died of consumption at Holy Cross hospital on July 18. The same form of preamble and resolution applies to brothers O'Neill and Martin as it does to Brother Kelly, which follows:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst on July 18, 1902, our beloved brother, Thomas A. Kelly, be it Resolved, That we, the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the A. O. H. extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the National Hibernian, Intermountain Catholic and Park City Record, and a copy be furnished to the bereaved family by the recorder.

Resolved, That our chapter room be draped in mourning for thirty days.

Elroy made this trip to the coast in order to recuperate his health, expecting to return early in August. The news of his dangerous condition comes with startling suddenness to his many patients and friends in this city, where he is universally beloved.

At the Holy Cross hospital, the sisters are inclined to believe that the afternoon report is somewhat exaggerated, although they received direct information from Portland that Dr. McElroy was "dangerously ill." Dr. McElroy is on the hospital staff, and has retained his position there for a number of years, giving perfect satisfaction to the sisters and the numerous patients under their charge. For their sake, if nothing more, we hope the street report about Dr. McElroy's condition is exaggerated.

EASTERN MILLIONS FOR UTAH'S IRON DEPOSITS.

Long Pending Deal Brought to a Successful Finish Yesterday.

A DEAL of greater magnitude than has been carried out in this city for a long time, and one that must eventually result in building up the commonwealth of Utah as no other single business transaction has ever done, was consummated in this city yesterday. It was the sale of the famous iron deposits near Cedar City for a sum aggregating over $2,500,000, to Peter L. Kimberley and Frank H. Buhl, both of Sharon, Pa., the latter a multi-millionaire iron and steel operator, and the former better known locally as the purchaser of the famous Annie Laurie gold bonanza and moving spirit in the Western Exploration company, that has done so much during the past year or two for the building up of the mining industry in this region.

The deal was clinched late in the afternoon upon the final investigation of titles and the drawing of contracts by Mr. Kimberley's attorney, John G. Williams, of Duluth, Minn., and while the details of the contract allow the purchasers eighteen months in which to make final payment there is reason to believe that the last dollar will be turned over to the vendors before the year closes. What sums were demanded and paid on the closing of the transaction yesterday was not disclosed, but that it was a handsome one there is no doubt.

The properties involved consist of nearly 100 patented claims, and large placer locations owned to run the total up to about 125 claims, embracing some of the finest bodies of iron ore in the continent today.

The vendors in the transaction are Colonel S. B. Milner and Messrs. Dean & Leach, who come in for about $1,000,000 on holdings amounting to seventy-one claims; Matt Cullen and the A. G. Coughlin estate, with eleven claims and a take-off of approximately $500,000; the Walker brothers, with about the same number of claims; the Thomas Taylor estate, seven claims, and the C. G. McGarry, with sixteen claims, all exclusive of the locations that go to make up the total acreage involved, and with various sums under the half-million mark to round out the price, as stated.

The consummation of the great undertaking was the outcome of the months of negotiation conducted by Wither Jones, who has spent a year in the country, and a representative of the vendors. Last winter the proposition was brought to the attention of Mr. Kimberley, who has handled more iron property than probably any other man in the country—his deals on the great Mesaba range alone aggregating over $200,000,000—and, after listening to the report of his expert, John L. Jones, who has served him for twenty years or more, he decided to take a hand. The preliminaries leading up to the climax of the transaction have been in progress for months, but so well guarded has been every move that it was only during the past few days that the arrival of Mr. Kimberley and the home-coming of Wither Jones, that any accurate idea of what was in the wind was obtainable.

The monster deposits of iron embraced in the property secured can be imagined more easily when it is known that Mr. Kimberley's expert declared, after visiting the mines, that he had seen more iron ore in one day of his trip than he had ever seen in a week before in his life, and there is not a deposit of iron in the country with which he is not perfectly familiar. The ore in the district named averages over 40 per cent metallic iron, and analyses show that it is purer and freer from phosphorus and other deleterious substances than any other iron in this country.

The close of the transaction, Mr. Kimberley was asked what would be done with the property and he said it would be mined and prospected thoroughly, but farther than that he was not willing at this time to disclose his plans.

It is a foregone conclusion, however, that the day is not far distant when works will be established for the conversion of the ore into all kinds of structural iron and steel, and in this kind of enterprise the population of the state and its importance as an industrial center must forge ahead in a manner that will be surprising.

The iron mines of the District of Columbia, the San Pedro harbor on the west coast than is Pittsburgh to the Atlantic coast and the day is approaching when a market for all the steel and iron that can be produced in the country will be an outlet there. The building of the new railroad, now under way, will solve the problem of transportation.

Other features of the enterprise now being incubated by Mr. Kimberley and his associate are promised in the near future.
